Ohio Clocks to be Turned Back February 14

TIME CHANGE APPROVED BY SENATE BOARD

Last Barriers To Switch Removed By Ruling Of Attorney General

BILL PASSAGE CERTAIN

Federal Time Governing Interstate Commerce And U. S. Offices Unchanged

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 28—All Ohio clocks not connected with federal functions today were slated to be turned back one hour to pre-war time at 2 a. m., Sunday, February 14.

The federal time governing federal offices and activities and interstate commerce in Ohio will, however, remain unchanged.

Following a lengthy hearing last night, the senate judiciary committee of the Ohio legislature unanimously voted out and recommended for passage a revised time-change bill, designed to solve the legal problems arising from the fact that Ohio will have a dual time standard. Under senate rule it will come up for a vote next Tuesday night, according to senate clerk Thomas Bateman, and passage was a foregone conclusion.

Barriers removed

The last barriers to a time-change, admittedly the "hottest issue since prohibition," were removed when Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert ruled that the legislature was legally able to change time as it affected activities purely within the state; when Governor Bricker endorsed a time change with the statement that "it will aid greatly in war production, and particularly agricultural production," and by the report of the legislative committee which conferred with WPB officials in Washington, indicating that a change of federal time might follow a change in state time.

The bill, after it passes the senate, will go to the house, where it was expected to be passed the following week, probably on Monday, February 8.

Emergency Measure

The bill itself, an emergency measure only 30 typewritten lines in length, contains a provision that "the standard time fixed by this act shall be placed in operation."

ALL BOYS OVER 14 CALLED FOR HUN ARMY DUTY

LONDON, Jan. 28 — All boys in Germany over 14 years of age are being mobilized in Germany, a Geneva dispatch to the Daily Express said today.

The youngest of the boys are to be assigned to military tasks of secondary importance, it was said.

A Berlin radio broadcast reported by the Express said that Hitler, to achieve absolute war effort in the Reich, has revived an ancient law of 1689 to place the German population under permanent martial law and ordered the mobilization of the entire nation.

Former Close Friend Of Hitler Aiding U. S. Plan Fight On Nazis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Dr. Ernst ("Putzi") Hanfstaengl, former intimate friend and chief foreign propaganda aide of Adolf Hitler, is today serving as a confidential adviser to the American government on several phases of the war to crush the Nazis.

Hanfstaengl was brought to Washington last Summer from a Canadian concentration camp and his intimate knowledge of Hitler and the Nazi regime in Germany put to use in behalf of the United Nations. His present whereabouts is regarded as a military secret.

For 14 years one of Hitler's closest personal friends, Hanfstaengl broke with the Nazis in 1937 and fled to London to escape death at the hands of Hitler's gestapo. When the war started, the British sent Hanfstaengl to a Canadian concentration camp, where his release was arranged last Summer so his great knowledge of the Nazis could be used against Hitler.

UNIFORM RAID SIGNAL ADOPTED

Army Brings Order Out Of Defense Confusion On East Coast

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—Order appeared out of confusion today following adoption by the U. S. army of uniform air raid warning signals and blackout rules for the 16 Atlantic seaboard states and the District of Columbia.

Announcement of the new regulations was made by Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum for the eastern defense command and Major Gen. Thomas A. Terry, for the second service command. James M. Landis, director of the office of civilian defense took part in drawing up the regulations.

Under the new plan a preliminary audible public "blue" signal is to sound on the sirens, consisting of a steady blast lasting approximately two minutes. This signal will mean "probability of enemy air raid," and civilian defense forces will mobilize. Lights in homes, business houses, certain industrial firms and all but certain street lights and traffic lights will be blacked out. Pedestrians may

EVEN PULPITS FEEL SHORTAGE OF MANPOWER

DENVER, Jan. 28 — Even the pulpits of the nation are suffering from a shortage of manpower, it was disclosed today by the Rev. George R. Hart of Robinson, Mo., bishop of the union church and Mission of the United States.

He said he was seeking 400 new ministers to replace those who have gone into military service, to keep the churches from closing their doors.

"After three months of training," he said, "retired business men, former public officials and past masters of masonic lodges can be fitted to take over a pulpit."

Bridges Says Defection Of Democratic Members Means Rejection

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28 — A senate canvass today disclosed that outcome of the battle of confirmation of Edward J. Flynn to be minister to Australia is in doubt, with 15 non-committal senators controlling the result.

Both friends and foes of Flynn were making determined bids for votes as the senate foreign relations committee drafted a formal report recommending that President Roosevelt's choice of the former Democratic national chairman for the diplomatic post be ratified.

Democratic Senate Leader Barkley predicted that Flynn will win by a "safe margin" while Sen. Bridges (R) N. H., said that defection of three Democratic members of the foreign relations committee indicated that he will be rejected.

Senate debate is scheduled to begin Monday, with Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich., making the chief speech in opposition on behalf of the foreign relations committee minority.

Leaders of both parties agreed to push the controversy to a final conclusion, with the result that debate may be limited to two days.

The opposition to Flynn's nomination appeared to be assured of 41 of the 96 votes in the senate. His chief foes were confident that a swing against him will increase the total to a safe majority.

Absence of a number of senators also may be a potent factor in the result.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

While Mr. Roosevelt was in Africa and Mrs. Roosevelt was in Canada, Henry Wallace was top man in Washington.

With Harry Hopkins also away there was nobody left in the White House and 10 bureaus immediately staked claims to space.

It isn't safe to walk away from a big house like that in Washington with so many stenographers taking dictation in the parks and executives waiting on curbstones anteooms.

Everybody in Washington suspected Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill were meeting. Everybody in London suspected they were meeting. Everybody in Berlin knew they were meeting.

Apparently there was a leak in the back fence gossip line but this was one secret we were glad to let the enemy have exclusively. He got no aid or comfort out of it.

BOOTLEGGING SLICED BREAD LAID TO BAKERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 — Charges that some bakers are "bootlegging sliced bread" were investigated today by the temporary food industries committee. Violators of the order prohibiting sale of sliced bread will face prosecution under the provisions of food distribution order No. 1 recently issued by food administration.

First Yank Air Raid Over Germany Catches Nazi Forces Napping

AN EIGHTH U. S. ARMY AIR FORCE BASE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 28—Crew members of Flying Fortresses and Liberator bombers which blasted the German naval base of Wilhelmshaven and the port of Emden in the first American air attack against the Reich declared today that they caught the Nazis napping by their sudden daylight appearance.

British Air Marshal Sir Arthur Travers Harris said in complimenting the bomber forces which made the raid without benefit of fighter escort that the attack was "well planned and gallantly executed."

The American pilots of the big four-motored bombers were less dramatic. They called the mission a "picnic."

The attacking planes were led by Col. Frank Armstrong of Asheville, N. C. but the first American bomber to blast a German target was piloted by Lieut. Edward J. Hennessey of Chicago.

"I was so intent on the job of bombing the heinies that I didn't catch the Colonel's signal that he would go in first," said Hennessey. The field was crowded with officers from American stations throughout England when the formation took off Wednesday morning. Hundreds of American air force men grumbled because they were not picked for the first bombing raid on Germany.

TOJO PREDICTS SURRENDER BY U. S. AND BRITAIN

LONDON, Jan. 28—Japan has laid the foundations for victory and will continue the fight until the United States and Great Britain are forced to surrender, Premier Hideki Tojo told the Japanese diet at the resumption of its sessions, according to a Tokyo broadcast heard today by Reuters.

"Japan, in closer co-operation with its allies, will carry on offensive operations until the United States and Great Britain are forced to give in," Tojo declared.

"Our dispositions for both offense and defense have been completed. This gave the foundations for certain victory been laid."

Sessions of the diet were resumed after a brief postponement due to Tojo's reported illness.

Japanese Suffering Heavy Loss

American And Australian Casualties Less Than Half Enemy Total

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 28 — The Allied campaign in the Papua territory of New Guinea which destroyed a force of 15,000 Japanese resulted in an all-time low in casualties for offensive action, it was announced today in a communique by Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Terming the American and Australian losses low, the Allied commander said that "the figures reverse the usual results of ground offensive campaigns."

Although it mentioned no totals, the communique said all of the Allied losses in Papua now have been compiled. They include, it was explained, not only battle casualties but the sick and losses from natural causes.

"Compared with those of the enemy," the communique said, "they are less than half of his ground force losses."

COOK CONFESSES SLAYING BRIDE IN "LOWER 13"

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28—Robert E. Folkes, 21, "zoot-suited" Negro dining car cook, has dictated and signed a full confession of the throat-slashing train murder last week of Mrs. Martha James, 21-year-old navy wife, authorities announced today.

Withholding details of the alleged confession until Oregon authorities arrive to help clear up the "mystery of lower 13," Los Angeles police, however, said Folkes admitted entering the berth of Mrs. James.

"He admitted sitting on her chest and slashing her throat several times with a knife," declared Detective Capt. Vernon Rasmussen.

While Folkes admitted the crime, he would give no motive, police asserted. Since Mrs. James' brutally slashed body toppled into the aisle of the train speeding through Oregon early last Saturday morning, police have accepted the motive as an attempted attack.

Before finally signing the complete confession, police said, Folkes contradicted himself several times. Officers quoted the cook as saying that he had made a deal with a man on the death train "to get Mrs. James out of the way." He said he had been offered $1,000 to "do the job," but never received the money.

As Folkes repeatedly changed his versions, police called in a psychiatrist, Dr. Paul de River, to examine him.

"Folkes is sane," Dr. River's report stated, "but of the emotional, braggart, exhibitionist type."

WAACS, FULL OF PEP, ARRIVE IN NORTH AFRICA

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA, Jan. 28—Full of pep and enthusiasm, a detachment of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps has arrived in North Africa for duty at the headquarters of Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, American commander-in-chief of the allied forces.

The WAACS came directly from an American port in a transport convoy. A small group had arrived previously from England.

After arrival at an African port, the contingent boarded a train which carried them to allied headquarters. The area had been heavily bombed previously.

On the sea voyage the convoy had at least one brush with an enemy submarine. The girl soldiers remained calm as destroyers tossed depth charges at the U-boat.

The WAAC unit has been assigned to duty as secretaries, telephone operators and chauffeurs.

Reports Say Hitler Ready To Retire As Director Of Armed Forces

BULLETIN

LONDON, Jan. 28 — The Anglo-American air force campaign to "bust Germany wide open" moved forward today with another heavy attack by British four-motored Lancaster and Halifax bombers on industrial areas in the Rhineland.

Six of the huge British planes were lost, indicating that hundreds took part in the sortie.

Preliminary reports of the new attack said that several hundred tons of high explosive and incendiary bombs had been dropped on Dusseldorf.

The raid lasted for twenty minutes.

Heavy cloud formations made it difficult to assess results, but the glare of fierce fires were seen and the attack was believed a most effective one.

Last night's raid followed the first all-American attack upon Germany proper by Boeing Flying Fortresses and Consolidated Liberators. In paying tribute to this daring daylight assault, British Air Marshal Sir Arthur Travers Harris, chief of the RAF bomber command, expressed conviction that between them British and American fliers will "bust Germany wide open."

Former Close Friend Of Hitler Aiding U. S. Plan Fight On Nazis

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28—Dr. Ernst ("Putzi") Hanfstaengl, former intimate friend and chief foreign propaganda aide of Adolf Hitler, is today serving as a confidential adviser to the American government on several phases of the war to crush the Nazis.

Hanfstaengl was brought to Washington last Summer from a Canadian concentration camp and his intimate knowledge of Hitler and the Nazi regime in Germany put to use in behalf of the United Nations. His present whereabouts is regarded as a military secret.

For 14 years one of Hitler's closest personal friends, Hanfstaengl broke with the Nazis in 1937 and fled to London to escape death at the hands of Hitler's gestapo. When the war started, the British sent Hanfstaengl to a Canadian concentration camp, where his release was arranged last Summer so his great knowledge of the Nazis could be used against Hitler.

Studies Propaganda

Hanfstaengl's duties, it was learned, include interpretation and analysis of Nazi propaganda, newspaper articles and the speeches of men like Hitler, Goebbels, and Goering. His advice is also sought on how best to communicate the war aims of the United Nations to the great mass of the German people.

The former Hitlerite has been well guarded since being brought to Washington from the Canadian concentration camp. Every effort has been made to protect him against Hitler's vengeance.

Educated at Harvard and husband of an American wife, it is understood that Hanfstaengl volunteered his services once the United States entered the war. A very thorough investigation was conducted into the sincerity of his motives and his offer accepted when government officials became convinced that he now sought the overthrow of Hitler.

Influenced By Son
Hanfstaengl, a 6 foot 7 inch giant, has a son, Egon, now serving in the United States army. The boy's loyalty to Uncle Sam was said to have influenced the father to offer his services to the United States government.

The former Nazi official graduated from Harvard in 1909 after getting the nickname, "Putzi". Then he studied at Munich, Vienna and Rome, before returning to New York to manage his father's Fifth Avenue art firm.

At the end of World War I, Hanfstaengl returned to Germany and joined the Hitler movement. He participated in the abortive "beer hall" Putsch and was exiled to Austria. When Hitler rose to power in 1933, the Fuehrer recalled Hanfstaengl and made him chief of the foreign press section in charge of propaganda.

An accomplished concert pianist, the Harvard graduate often entertained Hitler. It was in such moments that he gained an intimate knowledge of Hitler, his reasoning and his plans for the future.

Announcement of the new regulations was made by Lieut. Gen. Hugh A. Drum for the eastern defense command and Major Gen. Thomas A. Terry, for the second service command. James M. Landis, director of the office of civilian defense took part in drawing up the regulations.

The story published by a Swedish newspaper said the German high command had developed a plan to withdraw to a line in south Russia extending through Kurak and Kharkov to Sevastopol in the Crimea. But the rapid advance of the Red army already has rendered this scheme obsolete, according to the Swedish account.

Russian gains were reported today from the far north where the Finnish town of Petsamo, 75 miles (Continued on Page Two) northwest of the Arctic port of Murmansk, was said to have fallen, to the Caucasus where Red army units drove within 20 miles of the vital rail center of Kropotkin.

Soviet spearheads were within 80 miles of Kursk, and within 60 miles of Rostov on three sides of the city. Meantime Russian armies in the Stalingrad area whittled down the last remnants of the axis siege army that once numbered 250,000. No more than 5,000 enemy troops survived in the disastrous Volga campaign, said frontline dispatches.

3,500 Nazis Surrender

An additional 3,500 axis troops were reported to have surrendered yesterday in the Stalingrad district. The day's booty included 214 guns and 5,890 trucks.

Hitler's desperation was betrayed in a report that all boys over 14 years of age will be mobilized for "secondary" military service.

A sensational rumor that crown Prince Umberto of Italy, Gen. Francisco Franco of Spain and Premier Sukru Saracoglu of Turkey were in Casablanca during the conferences between President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill was published today by the London Daily Express. The paper's Morocco correspondent declared that the rumors still persist despite official denials. He added that President Roosevelt's emphasis on "unconditional surrender" by the axis powers might mean that peace offers had been presented to the allied leaders.

Fight In Tunisia

Fighting raged in Tunisia where the British, American and French armies were believed poised for an all-out assault of the German and Italian forces clinging to a coastal fringe in northern and eastern Tunisia.

The British Eighth Army has reported nearing Zoula, close to the Tunisian border. A middle east command communiqué said Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's vanguards were in contact with the enemy.

Axis sources continued to circulate reports that strong American forces based on Tebessa, ten miles from the western Tunisian border, were driving towards the east coast in thrusts towards Sfax and Gabes.

American and French forces were reported moving eastward through the Ousseltia valley in central Tunisia and consolidating positions won on the heights commanding the valley.

RAF bombers smashed at the north German coast during the night. It was believed the targets may have been Wilhelmshaven and Emden which were heavily assaulted in a daylight raid by U. S. flying fortresses and Liberator bombers. A German report claimed that eight RAF planes were shot down during the night.

Three American bombers failed to return from the Wednesday attack.

British light bombers made a surprise raid on Copenhagen, smashing at the shipyards and Diesel Engine plant which have been producing for the axis war machine.

Sustained allied air attacks on the axis ports was taken as evidence that United Nations strategy calls for concentrated assaults on German submarine bases and production centers.

who testified he was forced to decline an invitation to join the cruise at the last moment — took Flynn to a doctor, the actor said.

"The doctor diagnosed it as sinusitis and ordered me to a hospital," Flynn continued, adding that he tried to telephone Miss Satterlee from the hospital.

"Was that call the result of a conversation with another person?" asked Giesler.

"Yes," Flynn said.

That same evening Miss Satterlee returned the call.

"I said, 'To come to the point, Peggy, I've just been told by my business manager that you have been to the district attorney's office or some place and made a complaint about me, or somebody, on the boat. Is there anything to it?'"

"She said, 'Yes, I went down to day with my mother.'"

"I said, 'You can't be serious. You know everyone aboard treated you decently. What is it all about?'"

"She said, 'You'll find out.'"

"I asked to talk with her mother and then with her father, but she said they were not there."

"Again I asked, 'Can't you tell me anything about it?' And she said, 'You'll find out.'"

Sounding of a series of short blasts on air raid sirens will mean "enemy planes are practically overhead." All remaining lights must be blacked out and all persons must take shelter. Traffic except for emergency vehicles will be halted. This signal will be known as the "red" warning and the public was advised that in some cases the "red" signal will be the first heard if there has been insufficient time to sound the "blue" warnings.

A "blue" signal will always follow each "red" signal after immediate danger has passed, returning the communities to the conditions prescribed for the "blue" signal. It was explained that this procedure was adopted so that a community would be prepared to return to the "red" without delay if the enemy raiders return.

British light bombers made a surprise raid on Copenhagen, smashing at the shipyards and Diesel Engine plant which have been producing for the axis war machine.

TIGNER A.W.O.L. AFTER WEDDING IN CIRCLEVILLE

Private Robert Ellsworth Tigner, 23, came to Circleville early in December to be married, but failed to return to his station at Palm Springs, Cal. Sheriff Charles Radcliff said Thursday after he and Deputy Bryan Custer arrested the soldier near his Watt street home.

Tigner admitted to the sheriff that he had failed to return at the end of his furlough, but said that he had written to the war department and had asked Red Cross to provide him money to pay his transportation expense. It is the policy of neither to finance trips back to camp. The Red Cross puts up rail money only when it is imperative that a man in service come home from camp.

The soldier, a member of the 459th air base squadron, was helped in his trip home, the army permitting him to ride an airplane from California to Louisiana. He made his way home from the southern state. With him Tigner brought a parachute. In addition to the soldier, Uncle Sam also wants the parachute. Authorities found it in his home.

Tigner is expected to be taken to Fort Hayes, Columbus, for return to his station. He is charged with being absent without leave. Request for his arrest came from Fort Hayes officials.

In such combat where assaults are made extensively prepared positions strongly defended by experienced forces the casualties of the attacker generally are several times greater than those of the defender, it was pointed out.

"The utmost care was taken for conservation of our forces," the communiqué said, "with the result that probably no campaign in history against a thoroughly prepared and trained army produced such complete and decisive results with a lower expenditure of life and resources."

Two important factors contributed to this phenomenon: The absence of necessity to hurry the attack because time was not important and the fact that the Japanese positions were not rushed in a mass assault.

No further delays were anticipated, and Rep. Jackson Betts (R-Hancock) chairman of the house judiciary committee, said that his committee would consider the senate bill informally today so as to expedite passage when the measure reached the house.

Sentiment in the house still was reported by Clerk Otis Johnson as "nearly 100 percent for a time change."

COUNTY REAL ESTATE TO BE RE-APPRAISED

Auditor Forrest Short announced Thursday that a real estate re-appraisal will be conducted this Spring in Pickaway county. Appointment of appraisers will be made at the earliest date possible with work to get under way as soon as the auditor has his aides selected.

Two appraisers will be named for each township and in each municipality.

The auditor attended a meeting Wednesday in Columbus at which time the question of appraisal was discussed. Several auditors, he said, were opposed to appraising property this year, but the meeting was informed by the Ohio Tax Commission that under Ohio law the re-appraisal must take place this year. Property must be evaluated every six years.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backaches quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the waste matter out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, grating up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with burning and stinging sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by men for over 60 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

DRAFTEES OBEY ORDER TO CARRY SERVICE CARDS

Both Registration, Class Certificates Must Be In Possession

PENALTY IS PROVIDED

Soldiers-To-Be Also Must Keep In Touch With Draft Boards

Recent order of the Selective Service system, setting the February 1 deadline for possession of classification cards by men of military ages, is meeting with prompt response in Pickaway and other counties. Many registrants are reporting to their local boards, requesting classification or asking that lost classification cards be duplicated. However, there are still too many registrants who have failed to get in touch with their boards because of carelessness or negligence.

Registrants in the 18 to 35-year-old group must have in their personal possession at all times their classification cards (Form 57) as well as their certificate of registration (Form 2). While there are only a limited number of registrants in the state who can be considered as delinquent, according to Selective Service regulations, for failure to keep in touch with their local boards; nevertheless, no man will be allowed to avoid military responsibility merely because of failure to keep his local board advised of his whereabouts.

Must Carry Card

It has been determined, therefore, Col. C. W. Goble, state director, said, to require each registrant subject to the order not only to have his registration certificate (Form 2) in his personal possession, but also to have his classification card (Form 57) with him at all times, to show that he has been registered and classified by his local board.

After February 1 those registrants who fail to carry their registration and classification cards will be liable to fine, imprisonment, or both. The Federal Bureau of Investigation will investigate all such cases, as the Department of Justice is the authorized enforcement agency. When there is suspected delinquency the case is referred to the appropriate United States District Attorney.

Violators of the act, or its regulations, are liable under the law to a maximum fine of $10,000, or five years in prison, or both.

Requirements Listed

So that each registrant in Ohio will comply with the order requiring possession of classification cards as well as registration certificates, the director said that:

- (1) If he is subject to registration he should be registered and have his registration certificate (Form 2) in his possession.
- (2) If he belongs to an age group required to register as long as six months ago, exclusive of the 45-to-65-year-old group, he should have his classification card (Form 57) as well as his Registration Card in his possession, not later than February 1.

Those subject to the new requirement who are not in compliance with it or not certain whether they are in compliance, Director Goble said should:

- (1) Register at the nearest local board if they have not registered, and obtain their registration certificate (Form 2).
- (2) Go to or write to their local board if they have not received their classification card (Form 57) and be certain that their local board knows their proper address, where mail will reach them at all times.

- (3) If they have received a classification card (Form 57) and have lost it, they should so notify their local boards, requesting a duplicate.

Any man who is not certain of the address of his local board should go to the nearest local board and ask that a communication from him be referred to the board having jurisdiction over the area which he described as his place of residence at the time he registered, the director added.

OHIO VETERANS OF WORLD WAR II MAY GET BONUS

Ohioans may be asked to vote in November on a constitutional amendment which would provide a $50,000,000 bonus to Ohio's veterans of World War II.

The resolution proposing the bonus, to be paid at a rate of $10 for each month of service but in no case to exceed $300, was introduced by Reps. John Buckley (D-Mahoning) and A. Lee Fair (D-Holmes). They proposed to raise the money through the issuance of bonds, to bear not more than three percent interest, which would begin to mature in 1945.

The bonds would be retired through a general property tax, similar to that which paid for a bonus to Ohio's soldiers in the first World War.

In 1929 the legislature passed a similar measure which provided $25,000,000 for soldier bonuses. Later appropriations increased the total to about $30,000,000.

Beginning February 1 it is cash and carry at all service stations for any petroleum products sold. Of course, the ruling includes gasoline.

The ruling as announced by government petroleum sale officials reads:

"Commencing February 1, 1943, no person shall, directly or indirectly, grant or accept or participate in the granting or accepting of credit in connection with the sale of any petroleum products by or through any retail outlet, except federal, state or local government and to vehicles with "T" (commercial) ration stickers."

CASH AND CARRY FOR GASOLINE STARTS FEB. 1

Beginning February 1 it is cash and carry at all service stations for any petroleum products sold. Of course, the ruling includes gasoline.

Service station operators are sending personal notices to their customers, many of whom have successfully operated weekly and monthly charge accounts for many years, informing them that after that date no more sales "on the cuff" can be accepted.

The ruling as announced by government petroleum sale officials reads:

"Commencing February 1, 1943, no person shall, directly or indirectly, grant or accept or participate in the granting or accepting of credit in connection with the sale of any petroleum products by or through any retail outlet, except federal, state or local government and to vehicles with "T" (commercial) ration stickers."

DOWDY NOT TO BE PROSECUTED FOR JAIL BRAWL

Prosecutor George E. Gerhardt said Thursday that an indictment against James Dowdy, native Kentuckian, for cutting with intent to wound has been nolle. Dowdy, who has been serving time under one conviction of that nature, is to be paroled from the Ohio penitentiary under orders to return to Kentucky.

He was indicted here after he slashed two men in city prison where he had been placed on a larceny charge.

Gerhardt said that by clearing the record against him, the entire case will be disposed of.

REDS SELL BIG PAUL TO CUBS; $15,000 IS PAID

Derringer Goes After Long Service in Cincinnati Team's Uniform

NO PLAYERS SWAPPED

Right Hand Born In 1907 In Kentucky Winner Over Long Period

CHICAGO, Jan. 28—Paul Derringer, 35-year-old right hand pitcher of the Cincinnati Reds, became a member of the Chicago Cubs today in a deal which was believed to have involved about $15,000 in cash.

The deal was announced last night by James Gallagher, general manager of the Cubs, following a long distance talk with Warren Giles, head man of the Reds' front office.

Derringer was offered to the Cubs last December at the conclusion of the major league baseball meeting in Chicago in exchange for an outfielder who batted left handed. When the Cubs were unable to supply the left hander, the deal was dropped. But about 10 days ago Giles resumed negotiations on a cash basis.

Born October 17, 1907, in Springfield, Ky., Derringer has been in the National League since 1931 when he played with the St. Louis Cardinals and lost two games in the world series.

In May, 1933, Derringer was traded to the Reds along with Earl Adams and Allyn Stout for Leo Durocher, Frank Henry and John Ogden.

Sharing the No. 1 pitching role with Bucky Walters, Derringer rang up 22 victories for the Reds in 1935, 21 in 1938 and 25 in 1939 when Cincinnati won the pennant. After winning 20 games in 1940, he won two and lost one in the series with the Detroit Tigers. In 1941 he won only 12 games, and last season he registered 10 victories and 11 defeats for an earned run mark of 3.06.

Derringer had a lifetime average of 38 victories and 22 defeats in games with the Reds. In 1931 and 1939 he led the National League in winning percentage and was tops in complete games and innings pitched in 1938. He pitched two one-hitters in 1940 with the Cards and Cubs as victims.

Across his full 12-year career, Derringer chalked up 191 decisions and lost 174, working 3,078 innings. He was a member of the National League teams in the all-star games of 1935, 1939, 1940 and 1941, being tabbed the winning pitcher in the 1940 game.

MAJOR SERVICE TEAMS PREDICTED FOR 1944

CHICAGO, Jan. 28 — Major leagues in all sports will be composed of service teams by 1944 if the war lasts that long, Lieut. Jim McMillen, former football star, vice president of the Chicago Bears and now officially in charge of athletics at Navy pier, predicted today.

"By this time next year college and professional rosters will have been depleted to such an extent that I see no likelihood of those teams being able to operate," McMillen said. "Then we in the athletic end of combat training will be faced with the obligation of helping to maintain morale among civilians, especially war workers, by supplying their competitive sports."

HUTSON AGAIN WINS PRO LOOP PLAYER AWARD

CHICAGO, Jan. 28 — Don Hutson, the Green Bay Packers' pass-snatching ace, today became the first player in the National Football league to win the Joe F. Carr trophy for the second consecutive season.

The league's most valuable player trophy, commemorating the late founder and former president of the professional football circuit, was awarded Hutson by sports writers representing each city in the league. He received six first place votes for 30 points. Bill Dudley, Pittsburgh Steeler halfback, won second place with 18 points, and Sammy Baugh, Washington Redskins quarterback, was third with 15 points.

Previous winners of the trophy were Mel Hein, New York Giants center, in 1938; Parker Hall, Cleveland Rams halfback, in 1939, and Clarence Parker, Brooklyn Dodgers halfback, in 1940.

The award came almost on the eve of Hutson's 30th birthday Sunday. During the 1942 season Hutson kept league statisticians busy checking possible record breaking performances. He was credited with 17 league records last season and may have 18 unless Jack Manders' reported mark of scoring in 25 consecutive games proves correct. Hutson has scored in 25 straight games.

Coming to the Packers from the University of Alabama by way of Pine Bluff, Ark., the rangy end has failed to catch a pass in only one of 88 league contests, the lone game being against the Rams on September 21, 1941.

Six times Hutson scored three touchdowns in a single game, the Rams being victims four times. He has caught 336 passes for gains of 5,515 yards in league competition, and 72 of the catches were good for touchdowns.

Maybe Pitt Believes War Will End By Fall

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 — The sports people are awaiting some vital ruling from Washington — ruling that will have a direct bearing on football and other college athletics this year and next and perhaps for the duration. In the midst of this, the University of Pittsburgh, which has been in a state of football confusion for five or six years, hires a coach in the grand manner.

They don't merely get a guy who can go through the motions in times like these when there is all this uncertainty over what the game is going to be like in the near future, if any. They reach out and bring in none other than T-Formation Shaughnessy, well-remembered victim of the de-emphasis at Chicago, hero of Stanford's resurgence and more lately doing a little better than all right at Maryland.

The reserves are Marty Brutz, guard, Bill Huber, end, and John McGinnis, end. The freshmen are Steve Nemeth, quarterback, Charles Shimer, halfback, and Thaddeus Bundinkiewicz, tackle.

MAJOR LEAGUE PAY RULE NEAR

Most Of Moguls Awaiting Instructions Before Mailing Contracts

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Jan. 28 — Major league baseball magnates, grateful there has been no rationing of headache powders today awaited official word from Washington that would permit them to open contract negotiations with their hirings for '43 and were prepared for a wailing chorus of hold-out complaints that should echo from coast to coast!

Your correspondent has learned from a most authoritative source, that baseball wages will not be frozen; that the sport will be treated just like any other business and that all players, regardless of how much they earn, are free to negotiate for more dough under regulations laid down by the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

The BIR will issue a ruling to this effect, probably within 48 hours, ending weeks of speculation in which 15 of the 16 major league teams withheld mailing of contracts at the requests of National League President Ford Frick and

Will Harridge, head of the American loop.

Only the N. Y. Giants, which received an opinion from their regional revenue board, went ahead on their own and mailed out documents to their men.

Frick and Harridge will be told, by letter that:

Club owners will not need to gain formal approval from the BIR in order to grant individual wage increases if the increase comes within the normal salary schedule operated by the club in the past or last year.

The clubs will be required to file with the bureau of internal revenue a full salary schedule covering the range of salaries paid in the past.

If the clubs keep within the "merit of service" increases provided for in these schedules it will not be necessary to notify the bureau or ask for any approval of them.

Since no ballplayers are earning $25,000 net after taxes are deducted, no question of salary "ceilings" has been considered.

The BIR has jurisdiction over salaries of $5,000 per year or more and the War Labor Board handles those less than $5,000. The latter agency is also expected to issue a ruling in the near future, either greatly similar or identical to that of the BIR.

These regulations are substantially the same as those affecting any other business and our informant pointed out the BIR definitely does not consider baseball players professional men.

Frick and Harridge asked their leagues to withhold negotiations with their players presumably to avoid confusion in the event Washington ruled the sport a specialized profession subject to an individual set of regulations.

Figures show that more men than women in the United States go alone to the movies.

They reach out and bring in none other than T-Formation Shaughnessy, well-remembered victim of the de-emphasis at Chicago, hero of Stanford's resurgence and more lately doing a little better than all right at Maryland.

He goes to Pitt on the tail-end of a football housecleaning that led eventually to the unseating of Jock Sutherland, who was a thoroughly competent coach and gentle fellow deserving of a better rate than the politics that finally engulfed him. All he did was to put out winning football teams, which was the idea in the first place.

That's still the idea. For the people who saw the alleged evil of winning football, there has been a brief respite at Pitt, during which, they have looked on the mangling of their teams by opposition, which wouldn't get beyond its end zone in the old days. It may be bad to win, but it's worse to keep on losing as Pitt now seems to realize.

Hence, Mr. T-formation himself comes on the scene at a salary estimated at between $15,000 and $20,000 a year.

What nobody has been able to figure out is the meaning of all this, not that it necessarily is anybody's business.

But at a time like this and like the immediate future threatens to be Shaughnessy might be the genius above and beyond all geniuses without being able to win at football. You've got to have players. Don't tell me he's going to call the signals, handle the ball, do the blocking and the passing and the chores of a man in motion personally to make that T-formation click.

Maybe Pitt has the inside stuff and knows the war is going to be over by the Fall.

Club owners will not need to gain formal approval from the BIR in order to grant individual wage increases if the increase comes within the normal salary schedule operated by the club in the past or last year.

The clubs will be required to file with the bureau of internal revenue a full salary schedule covering the range of salaries paid in the past.

If the clubs keep within the "merit of service" increases provided for in these schedules it will not be necessary to notify the bureau or ask for any approval of them.

Since no ballplayers are earning $25,000 net after taxes are deducted, no question of salary "ceilings" has been considered.

The BIR has jurisdiction over salaries of $5,000 per year or more and the War Labor Board handles those less than $5,000. The latter agency is also expected to issue a ruling in the near future, either greatly similar or identical to that of the BIR.

These regulations are substantially the same as those affecting any other business and our informant pointed out the BIR definitely does not consider baseball players professional men.

Frick and Harridge asked their leagues to withhold negotiations with their players presumably to avoid confusion in the event Washington ruled the sport a specialized profession subject to an individual set of regulations.

Figures show that more men than women in the United States go alone to the movies.

DELAY SEEN IN SERVICE CALL TO MARRIED MEN

Draft Board Reports Youth Pool Probably Enough For February Quota

READY FOR EMERGENCY

Sixth Registration Group Members Being Sent For Examinations

Possibility that drafting of Circleville and Pickaway county married men who are without children may be put off for another month was noted Thursday when Selective Service board declared that it has a sufficient number of 18 and 19 year old class 1-A youths available to fill an ordinary February all-service call.

Several months ago it was indicated that men married and with wives only as dependents would possibly be called into service in January, and almost certainly in February. As the situation now stands no men married prior to registration will be called in February unless state Selective Service sends a huge requisition to the local board for men for the February call.

Average Call

At present a tentative call asks for fewer than 100 draftees. If this number stands as the month's quota then no married men will be required. However, in several adjoining counties draft calls for February have been unusually big, Fairfield county being asked for 200 men and Ross being requested to send nearly the same number.

The local board is prepared for any emergency, however, and a call at least twice as big as the one tentatively received could be handled without difficulty. It, however, would take some married men.

Examinations Ordered

The board has started to send boys of the sixth registration, which includes youths becoming 18 since last June 30, for physical education, indicating that some of the boys in this group will be sent to induction centers as early as March. It will not be possible to send any of the younger boys to the army in February since they will not be processed in that time. Many of the younger boys will be deferred until school is out next May and June.

The board has 100 youngsters of this group eligible. They will not be taken until the fifth registration youths of 18, 19 and 20 have been sent into service.

Boys of the sixth registration will start visiting local physicians next week for their screening physical examinations.

National draft officials announced Wednesday that possibility exists that men with children may be drafted before next Winter. Maj. Gen. Lewis Hershey, Selective Service chief, said that the nation's armed forces will number 10,420,000 by the end of the year. The announcement gave emphasis to a statement some time ago by Hershey indicating that if the armed forces go to 10,000,000 the supply of childless married men will be exhausted.

WICKARD ORDER CUTS TOTAL OF DAIRY PRODUCTS

To make available as fluid milk or as butter, cheese or dried milk a greater percentage of the total 1943 U. S. milk production, Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard has issued an order limiting the use of milk for the manufacture of ice cream for civilian consumption to 65 percent of the amounts used from December 1, 1941, to November 30, 1942.

This order, in operation now, affects every ice cream manufacturer and all makers of other types of frozen dairy foods or mix and makes it mandatory on each plant to stay within its quota of total milk used. The order, however, permits changes in the percentage of total milk solids and of milk solids-not-fats used in the mix so a larger amount of frozen dairy products can be made from each 100 pounds of milk than would have been possible under previous manufacturing standards.

Compliance with this order by manufacturers will result in an average supply of about eight quarts of ice cream per person during 1943. This is the amount that was consumed in 1938. Average annual consumption in 1942 was a little more than 12 quarts for every person in the U. S.

It is expected this curtailment of frozen dairy products will release enough milk to make 97,500,000 pounds of butter and 68,000,000 pounds of dried skim milk during 1943. The national need for butter, cheese, and dried milk is greater than the need for ice cream and allied products.

Any protests against this order should be addressed to Dairy and Poultry Branch, Food Distribution Administration, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

OVERWEIGHT MAIL NOT TO REACH FIGHTING MEN

Postal officials, in an effort to save time after mail reaches various military centers throughout the nation, have received a decree which declares that all overweight mail addressed to men in service should be returned to the sender immediately instead of being sent to the camp and the extra fee collected there.

The postoffice department has decided that too much valuable time is taken in collecting overdue fees in the camps.

If air mail is dispatched without sufficient stamps it will be sent as ordinary mail. Name and address of sender as the addressee should appear on the outside of each piece of mail when addressed to members of the army services.

MISS BESS FRY SELECTED FOR RED CROSS POST

Miss Bess Fry, 906 South Court street, was chosen Wednesday night by Pickaway county Red Cross directors to become Home Service secretary. Miss Fry will start to work February 1.

Selection was made after 12 applications were considered, the board meeting Tuesday afternoon and Wednesday evening to discuss the applications.

The new Home Service secretary will succeed Miss Agnes Butch, resigned. Miss Butch will remain in an advisory capacity with the Red Cross and will have an important task in helping to instruct Miss Fry concerning her new work. Miss Butch has been active in the Red Cross organization for 20 years.

Carl C. Leist, Red Cross chairman, said that the Home Service work has become too heavy for one person to handle. Miss Fry, who will receive $75 monthly plus four cents a mile for use of her automobile, will take some time to become acquainted with her work. She will also attend a Red Cross school starting April 1 in West Alexandria, Va. This school is conducted by the Red Cross with expenses of service workers paid. Red Cross reached no decision on new quarters, several properties still under consideration. Neither was a decision reached on a chairman for the War Fund campaign for $16,800 which is to open March 1. Hal Dean, blood bank chairman, met with the directors and discussed the program which will be conducted here March 15 and 16. Dean said that registration plans and location for the blood donation program will be announced soon. American Indians have sent more than 11,000 men to war out of a population of about 400,000 creating a manpower shortage on reservations.

ENEMIES AT HOME

ENEMIES within the walls constitute one unreckoned danger which the Nazis must bear in mind. These enemies are the millions of unwilling workers of other nationalities, imported to make up for Germany's growing manpower shortage.
Five and a half millions is a conservative estimate of the number of these foreign workers. Some 100,000 Russians from the occupied territories have been sent to the steel and coal regions of the Ruhr. They are probably Communists, who may infect the German workers with their doctrines. That risk must be run, so desperately is Germany in need of men.
Germany's so-called allies must contribute also. Italy has been forced to send Germany 200,000 metal and industrial workers, and 60,000 men to work on the farms during Spring planting. Paul Hagen, an Austrian who has studied the subject and revealed his findings in the book, "Will Germany Crack?" puts it this way:
"Just as nobles in the Middle Ages sold their subjects as soldiers to more powerful potentates, the vassal governments of the European New Order rent out their employed and their skilled workers to the labor-hungry machine of Nazi war economy."
More and more German soldiers are dying at the front. More and more aliens are filling up Germany—aliens who hate Germany as any slave must hate a cruel taskmaster. What outlook does the future hold?

RESTAURANT COOKING

HERE'S to American cooking, the worst in the world! That used to be the cry of foreign travellers. Everything in the United States was fried, so the report ran, and no attention was paid to sauces.
For a while there was truth in the charge. Except by rail, travel was uncommon. Roadside and city restaurants could count on the trade only of their neighbors. With transients too few to matter, there was no great incentive to better cooking.
The automobile changed all that. His Majesty the tourist wanted food at meal times, and wanted it somewhere near as good as he would get at home. The hot dog stand sufficed only occasionally. And the traveller brought back home word of Maryland chicken, oysters cooked as they are in New Orleans, Indian pudding from New England. He demanded them, and other delicacies, from restaurants in his own state, and he began to get them. Eating guides appeared, listing the better dining-rooms. To be included in their lists was an honor to be sought after. American

'ROUND CIRCLEVILLE . . . Hour by Hour

Pages From the Diary of An Antiquated Reporter:
About the village at the regular hour and found even the early ones talking about that conference in Casablanca. Everyone optimistic, too optimistic, I think. This European war may end in 1943, but I doubt it. As for the war in the Pacific, that thing probably will go on for years. You think differently? Well, it took the United Nations a mighty long time to clear that little strip of coast in New Guinea, and that Guadalcanal fight didn't start yesterday. Just two of thousands of rat holes we will have to clean out.
Came a letter from Sergeant Carl C. Palm at Robins Field, Georgia. Says "I receive the paper three days late, but if it came a year late it still would be welcome. I read every word, even the want ads. We are anxious for action, for we wish to end this war and get back home."
Way down at the bottom of his letter Carl breaks the real news, little realizing that it is really a Ripley item and that he is unique among all of Uncle Sam's fighters. He has had breakfast served to him in bed! Almost impossible to believe. Here it is, the way Carl describes it. "I am a mess sergeant and I have an Indian for a fireman. The other morning I overslept and the first thing I knew the Indian was alongside my bunk with a tray and on the tray my breakfast. Sat up and ate it, wondering a little what might happen to me were MacArthur, Marshall or a second lieutenant to walk in and see a doughboy wallowing in such luxury." Probably the first man in history of American forces to eat breakfast in bed.

Glen Gelb has a son in the navy and was reminded of the fact by Mary Ellen, his little daughter. She was spanked, and when it was all over turned to her daddy and announced: "You wait until Junior comes home. I will tell him and he will spank you."
Dave Jackson, the artillery lieutenant, was in with Burn Jones, who was preparing to leave for training in army aviation. Dave happy over his army experience and Burn much pleased by his prospects. Wished both youngsters the very best of luck.

Wonder where Deputy Sheriff William Jennings Bryan Custer got that sweater? Hotter than a biscuit, in color at least. Chatted with Bish Given, who did such a fine job of organizing Air Raid Wardens and Fire Watchers as chief of that division in Civilian Defense. Forced to resign when the help problem became too great in his oil business and he found himself working 18 hours a day to maintain his establishment.
In he came, wearing the champion smile of the week. Just a little fellow who carries papers and who has yet much to learn about women and life. "Gee, I'm lucky," he declared. "Daddy just told me we got a baby sister. Arrived this morning. Just imagine, me and my brother won't have to wash dishes any more. Hope she starts in tonight." Another newsboy piped up: "I got a sister at my home, too, but that don't get me out of washing dishes. She's never there when that time comes." "But my sister is different," declared the first lad. Well, let him think so long as possible.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

PATTERSON ARGUES
WASHINGTON — Undersecretary of War Patterson, who believes in maintaining contacts with all parts of American life, invited AFLeader Bill Green and CIO's Phil Murray down to see him the other evening. Patterson wanted to get their slant on various things, including new legislation.
"Anytime anything comes up affecting labor," Patterson said, "don't hesitate to call me direct. I want to work out a plan whereby both the A. F. of L. and CIO will be consulted about anything affecting labor, especially where new legislation is concerned."
Patterson went on to say that he was opposed to any action in Congress curbing the present rights of labor. He also took occasion to put in some vigorous opposition against the Tolan-Pepper-Kilgore Bill which would transfer to one over-all civilian agency many of the procurement and production duties now performed by the Army and Navy. These production duties are now the subject of considerable debate and bickering between the Army and WPB.

After listening to Undersecretary Patterson's forcefully expressed reasons, Bill Green, influenced by them, began to waver. Whereupon Phil Murray interrupted. "Look here, Bill," he said, "I was present when you testified before the Committee. I heard what you said. The A. F. of L. is definitely on record for the Tolan bill." That ended that.

CONTROVERSIAL GENERAL SOMERVELL

Both labor leaders expressed satisfaction with the conference, but during one point in the conversation, Murray said:
"But, Bob, there's one man in your organization whose labor policies we don't like. That's General Somervell."
"Well, Phil," replied Patterson, "I realize that General Somervell sometimes does give the wrong impression where labor is concerned. But when you have to look at his side of it. Remember that he has the problem of supplying 5,000,000 men. Two years ago, ninety percent of the officers in that Army were civilians. And of the men, 99 percent were civilians. That Army is made up of a lot of your union men, and farmers, and men from all walks of life.
"It's General Somervell's job to give them the best shoes, the best uniforms, the best guns, the best food, ammunition, everything he can get—and on schedule. That's why sometimes he gets impatient and may not always appear to understand labor."

MRS. "CINDERELLA" WALLACE

The Vice President and Mrs. Wallace turned up on foot the other night for dinner (Continued on Page Ten) cooking improved by leaps and bounds.
Now travel is reduced again, and materials are hard to get. Will our cooking drop back to its old mediocrity? Probably not, for rationing is making home and restaurant cooks both more conscious of their cooking and eager to show how good the food can be which is produced under difficulties.

DIET AND HEALTH

Modern Life Has Its Own Health Alphabet

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
THE LADY Dressed in Yellow was driving over to the hospital in my car where she was to take up her business of helping the nurses to copy charts. The Lady in Yellow and I had shared the same bedroom (for 29 years) and she and I had just shared breakfast. The Lady in Yellow is beginning to be a staff assistant.
"What," said the Lady in Yellow, "does a capital H. surrounded by a circle, mean?"
"I do not know," I replied.
"What," asked the Lady in Yellow, "does small a, period, small c, period, mean?"
That I could answer. "It means before meals. Small p, period, small c, period, means after meals. Some drugs should be given on an empty stomach so that they will be absorbed; some should be given after meals so as to stop the conflict thereby created."
"What does small p, period, small r, period, small n, period, mean?"
"As necessary."
It must indeed be a little difficult to get on to all the abbreviations doctors use to write down orders before the nurses copy them on the chart.
"What," asked the Lady in Yellow, "does capital P, period, capital A, period, mean?"
"Pericarditis," I answered.
Lady Gets Some Answers
"And then," I said, "OPA means ocular perception absent; and NRA means now red cells at rest; and R.O.P. means right occiput posterior; and A.M.A. means American Medical Association; and CIO means convergent insufficiency of; and BM means basal metabolism; and ODB means old demanded for breakfast; and A.F. L. means asthma, fairly labored; and WPB means working point battered; and G.I. means gastro-intestinal; and CCC means cathodal closure contraction; and OWI means omniscience without inspiration; and POLY means polymorphonuclear neutrophile leucocyte; and L.O.A. means left occiput anterior at; and K.M.C. means can't make better connections and RFC means rigid faulty cerebellum and S.O.S. is service of supply and R.Q. is respiratory quotient and CDCPBP is carbon dioxide combining form of the blood plasma and T.N.T. is trinitrotoluene and—"

"That's not a medical term," said the Lady in Yellow, indignantly.
"It's in the medical dictionary," I answered.
"And NCB is nitrogen, carbon and bromide; and NPN is non-protein nitrogen and EKG is electrocardiograph and TVA is tubes vessel anterior and RFC is rejects to find cents; and DNB and AP and BVD—what is BVD?"
"Buttons very desirable," said the Lady in Yellow. "My, it's wonderful to have an education like yours. It certainly is an alphabetical age."
When we reached the hospital, I rushed up to my friend, the resident interne.
"What does capital H, surrounded by a circle mean?" I asked.
"Hypodermic," was his reply.
QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
R. Y.: 1. Will an x-ray show a duodenal ulcer? 2. Is there a cure for this condition? 3. Is there any special diet?
Answer: 1. The x-ray will reveal a duodenal ulcer in about 80 to 90 per cent of cases. 2. Duodenal ulcer, in most cases, tends to complete recovery. 3. The diet should be one which is nutritious, easily digested and should contain a minimum of roughage and foods which are irritating. The ideal article of diet is the breast of a broiled spring chicken—in other words, protein, lean and tender. Other articles which are comforting are eggs, milk and cream, butter, mashed potatoes, ice cream, pureed vegetables. The patient with duodenal ulcer should avoid sweet, sour and spicy foods. The use of this diet for six months or a year allows the ulcer to heal, which it will do in most instances.

SYNOPSIS
KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York, feels herself strongly attracted to JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all professional offers. Kay has been very friendly with
DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, since she first started to work there. Her best friend in the city is her cousin,
HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village.
YESTERDAY: Jake asks Kay to leave the party with him, but she hesitates, not wishing to offend David, who brought her.
CHAPTER SIX
"HANG DAVID, whoever he is, and come on out with me," Jake said, pressing her arm tightly.
Tony's party was turning out better than Kay had expected. She felt herself weakening.
"I'll tell David you had a headache," Het said, not looking at Kay. "And that you didn't want a lot of fuss and explanations, so you slipped out alone."
"An unlikely story," Kay said, but allowed herself to be led to the back door.
"Don't worry about David," Het pacified him. "Het assured Kay as she said goodbye.
"Why all this fuss about David," Jake wanted to know as he hailed a taxi.
"David's my boss. I don't like to be rude."
"Oh," Jake said with relief. He helped her into the taxi. "Any preferences about where we go?"
"Any place that's reasonably quiet," Kay said, as she settled herself comfortably in a corner of the taxi. She didn't feel a bit tired now.
"I have a favorite spot," he said. "It has music, but it's all toned down. And it's usually deserted after dinner."
"Music means we'll probably dance," Kay thought. "We never have. I don't know if I want to. It will be easier if I don't have that to remember." But still she felt a sense of sweet, troubled anticipation.
By the time they each had smoked a cigarette they were there. The way the driver thanked Jake, Kay knew the tip had been too large. They found a table against the wall. Kay liked the place, a small room, the walls all hung with some soft gray material, the lights rosy and dim, the music seductive. She caught a glimpse of herself in a mirror and saw that the kind lights had brought some color back to her cheeks.
"Our first meeting in weeks, this calls for a celebration," Jake said, his eyes shining. "Let's have champagne."
Kay nodded her head. They didn't dance until after they had their first glass. Then the orchestra began to play a rumba and Jake said, "Come on." She had often wondered why the kind of a dancer Jake would be. Gosh, she imagined, with his natural sense of rhythm. She loved to dance. There weren't many people on the floor, just enough to keep them from feeling conspicuous.

The first touch of Jake's arm made her head whirl. She wasn't even sure she was following. Jake murmured, "You really can dance." She said softly, "You're pretty good yourself."
When the orchestra stopped playing, Jake had to steady her. On their way back to the table Jake said, "We must do this often."
"Not often," Kay thought, "I can't stand it."
Some friends of Jake's wandered in, joined them. The men all asked Kay to dance, the women monopolized Jake. They didn't dance together again that night.
Jake took her home. It was very late. "This has been unfair of me," he apologized. "You should have been in bed hours ago charging up your energies for the workshop."
"I've enjoyed it," she said, taking out her latch key. Jake opened the door for her.
"A night cap?" she questioned.
"Thanks, no." He rang for the elevator. Kay stood in the dimly lit doorway, chatting idly. He seemed utterly indifferent. The elevator arrived. They said good night, she watched him go, first his back in a well-tailored coat, then a brief flash of his white teeth as he smiled on the way down.
For once in her life, Kay wished she didn't have to go to work on Monday. Everything seemed flat and stale, and she dreaded seeing David. But he didn't even mention Tony's party on Saturday night.
"I've about decided that the trip to the coast would be wise," he informed her. He picked up his desk calendar and began flipping the pages. "My secretary has been checking vacations. The only time you and I can both be away is the last week in July. I trust that will be convenient for you." His tone was crisp, impersonal.
"Of course," she answered. She might as well be in California as here. She was sure now that Het had been wrong about Jake coming back to see her.
"I'll have the plane reservations made then," he said. "We'll leave on a Friday, fly back Sunday a week. Then we'll just be away one business week." His phone rang. "All right, send him in," he replied impatiently. "There wasn't anything more you wanted, was there?" he asked Kay.
"No, nothing."
David had never dismissed her abruptly like this before. He was hurt and with good cause, she reflected, as she left the office. But she decided to ignore his brusqueness. It would probably pass off.
July was a full month. Her assistant had only been with her for six months, and while he was fully capable, she seemed to have an almost endless list of instructions for him. People from out of town always descended on New York during the summer, and she both entertained and went out a lot. She blew herself to some good looking airplane luggage, a new evening dress. Het dined with her the night before she left for the coast.

"How's your blood pressure," she asked, "high?"
"No, I'm not really very excited," Kay said.
"Don't tell me you're getting blasé."
"Nothing like that," Kay laughed. "I'm looking forward to the trip, but I wish I were going alone."
"David still aloof?"
"Yes. He's been civil and that's about all."
"He doesn't seem like the kind of person who'd hold a grudge," Het said. "He took me home the night of Tony's party and we sat around talking for hours. I thought he was grand."
Kay remembered all the infinitely kind things he had done for her. Her first Christmas in New York. She'd come back from church blue as a pair of Dutchman's breeches and found David there, his arms full of presents, waiting to whisk her off to his sister's in Greenwich for a family dinner. The time he had given her a season ticket to the Philharmonic for her birthday, that was her first year at the store and she hadn't had a nickel to waste. The standing order at the florists that kept her apartment gay with flowers. No wonder Het thought he was grand. He was both brilliant and substantial.
Het left early with a promise to be at the airport. Kay had to begin her packing.
"I'm going to drain my thoughts of someone far less substantial than David," Kay thought, passing through the living room. "If Jake cared anything at all for me, surely I would have heard something from him since that night at Tony's."
She paused long enough to admire the cool look of the room. The walls were white and in the summer green and white chintz covered the furniture. The lamps, cigarette boxes, ash trays were white. The only notes of bright color were a painting over the mantelpiece and the flowers.
Her bedroom was in a disarray that she knew probably had near Anna frantic. There was a pile of underwear on the bed, unpacked dresses across chairs, cosmetics jumbled on the dressing table, tissue paper everywhere. She felt sleepy and decided to finish packing in the morning. She brushed her hair and teeth, cold creamed her face, got into bed and turned the light out.
But sleep didn't come as easily as she expected. It hadn't for weeks now. She'd always had short patience with her friends who found endless interest in their insomnia. She still thought it was a boring subject and an infernal nuisance. But she still didn't think it was easy to control. She didn't know which was worse, lying awake, tormented by thoughts of Jake, or sleeping fitfully, disturbed by jumbled dreams. Unrequited love was a new and completely upsetting experience to her. And she couldn't fool herself any longer about its being unrequited.

Hints on Etiquette
If a young woman goes to a strange city or town to live and either parent has an old friend in the same place, it is customary for the parent to write to the friend and mention the fact that the daughter is now situated in the same town and ask the friend to call upon the girl. This is the correct procedure, even if the friend is a man and a bachelor.

UNDER the spur of initiative, well-directed energy of a practical and constructive sort, and insight, important interests should receive much impetus on this day. But principle and prudence, rather than expediency or irregularity of motive and methods, should be adhered to if proper ends are to be attained.
If It Is Your Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may enjoy an exceptionally enterprising and productive year, if they will be careful to adhere to strict rules and regulations of business procedure and not be tempted by ways of expedience. With sound purpose and diligence, important enterprises may be carried to success. Social, sentimental, and all round gratifications and pleasures may be able to participate in reaction to progress and initiative.
A child born on this day should have much enterprise, cleverness and executive ability, eager to reach important place in business and socially. It may invite self-undoing by irregular, tricky or questionable methods.

"Anytime anything comes up affecting labor," Patterson said, "don't hesitate to call me direct. I want to work out a plan whereby both the A. F. of L. and CIO will be consulted about anything affecting labor, especially where new legislation is concerned."
Patterson went on to say that he was opposed to any action in Congress curbing the present rights of labor. He also took occasion to put in some vigorous opposition against the Toland-Pepper-Kilgore Bill which would transfer to one over-all civilian agency many of the procurement and production duties now performed by the Army and Navy. These production duties are now the subject of considerable debate and bickering between the Army and WPB.
After listening to Undersecretary Patterson's forcefully expressed reasons, Bill Green, influenced by them, began to waver. Whereupon Phil Murray interrupted.
"Look here, Bill," he said, "I was present when you testified before the Committee. I heard what you said. The A. F. of L. is definitely on record for the Toland bill." That ended that.

CONTROVERSIAL GENERAL SOMERVELL
Both labor leaders expressed satisfaction with the conference, but during one point in the conversation, Murray said:
"But, Bob, there's one man in your organization whose labor policies we don't like. That's General Somervell."
"Well, Phil," replied Patterson, "I realize that General Somervell sometimes does give the wrong impression where labor is concerned. But when you have to look at his side of it. Remember that he has the problem of supplying 5,000,000 men. Two years ago, ninety percent of the officers in that Army were civilians. That Army is made up of a lot of your union men, and farmers, and men from all walks of life.
"It's General Somervell's job to give them the best shoes, the best uniforms, the best guns, the best food, ammunition, everything he can get—and on schedule. That's why sometimes he gets impatient and may not always appear to understand labor."

THE LADY Dressed in Yellow was driving over to the hospital in my car where she was to take up her business of helping the nurses to copy charts. The Lady in Yellow and I had shared the same bedroom (for 29 years) and she and I had just shared breakfast. The Lady in Yellow is beginning to be a staff assistant.
"What," asked the Lady in Yellow, "does a capital H. surrounded by a circle, mean?"
"I do not know," I replied.
"What," asked the Lady in Yellow, "does small a, period, small c, period, mean?"
That I could answer. "It means before meals. Small p, period, small c, period, means after meals. Some drugs should be given on an empty stomach so that they will be absorbed; some should be given after meals so as to stop the conflict they created."
"What does small p, period, small r, period, small n, period, mean?"
"As necessary."
It must indeed be a little difficult to get on to all the abbreviations doctors use to write down orders before the nurses copy them on the chart.
"What," asked the Lady in Yellow, "does capital P, period, capital A, period, mean?"
"Pericarditis," I answered.

SYNOPSIS
KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York, feels herself strongly attracted to JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all professional offers. Kay has been very friendly with
DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, since she first started to work there. Her best friend in the city is her cousin,
HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village.
YESTERDAY: Jake asks Kay to leave the party with him, but she hesitates, not wishing to offend David, who brought her.
CHAPTER SIX
"HANG DAVID, whoever he is, and come on out with me," Jake said, pressing her arm tightly.
Tony's party was turning out better than Kay had expected. She felt herself weakening.
"I'll tell David you had a headache," Het said, not looking at Kay. "And that you didn't want a lot of fuss and explanations, so you slipped out alone."
"An unlikely story," Kay said, but allowed herself to be led to the back door.
"Don't worry about David," "I'll pacify him," Het assured Kay as she said goodbye.
"Why all this fuss about David," Jake wanted to know as he hailed a taxi.
"David's my boss. I don't like to be rude."
"Oh," Jake said with relief. He helped her into the taxi. "Any preferences about where we go?"
"Any place that's reasonably quiet," Kay said, as she settled herself comfortably in a corner of the taxi. She didn't feel a bit tired now.
"I have a favorite spot," he said. "It has music, but it's all toned down. And it's usually deserted after dinner."
"Music means we'll probably dance," Kay thought. "We never have. I don't know if I want to. It will be easier if I don't have that to remember." But still she felt a sense of sweet, troubled anticipation.
By the time they each had smoked a cigarette they were there. The taxi driver thanked Jake. Kay knew the tip had been too large. They found a table against the wall. Jake liked the place, a small room, the walls all hung with some soft gray material, the lights rosy and dim, the music seductive. She caught a glimpse of herself in a mirror and saw that the kind lights had brought some color back to her cheeks.
"Our first meeting in weeks, this calls for a celebration," Jake said, his eyes shining. "Let's have champagne."
Kay nodded her head. They didn't dance until after they had their first glass. Then the orchestra began to play a rumba and Jake said, "Come on." She had often wondered what kind of a dancer Jake would be. Good, she imagined, with his natural sense of rhythm. She loved to dance. There weren't many people on the floor, just enough to keep them from feeling conspicuous.

The first touch of Jake's arm made her head whirl. She wasn't even sure she was following. Jake murmured, "You really can dance." She said softly, "You're pretty good yourself."
When the orchestra stopped playing, Jake had to steady her. On their way back to the table Jake said, "We must do this often."
"Not often," Kay thought, "I can't stand it."
Some friends of Jake's wandered in, joined them. The men all asked Kay to dance, the women monopolized Jake. They didn't dance together again that night.
Jake took her home. It was very late. "This has been unfair of me," he apologized. "You should have been in bed hours ago charging up your batteries for the workshop."
"I've enjoyed it," she said, taking out her latch key. Jake opened the door for her.
"A night cap?" she questioned.
"Thanks, no." He rang for the elevator. Kay stood in the dimly lit doorway, chatting idly. He seemed utterly indifferent. The elevator arrived. They said good night, she watched him go, first his back in a well-tailored coat, then a brief flash of his white teeth as he smiled on the way down.
For once in her life, Kay wished she didn't have to go to work on Monday. Everything seemed flat and stale, and she dreaded seeing David. But he didn't even mention Tony's party on Saturday night.
"I've about decided that the trip to the coast would be wise," he informed her. He picked up his desk calendar and began flipping the pages. "My secretary has been checking vacations. The only time you and I can both be away is the last week in July. I trust that will be convenient for you." His tone was crisp, impersonal.
"Of course," she answered. She might as well be in California as here. She was sure now that Het had been wrong about Jake coming back to see her.
"I'll have the plane reservations made then," he said. "We'll leave on a Friday, fly back Sunday a week. Then we'll just be away one business week." His phone rang. "All right, send him in," he replied impatiently. "There wasn't anything more you wanted, was there?" he asked Kay.
"No, nothing."
David had never dismissed her abruptly like this before. He was hurt and with good cause, she reflected, as she left the office. But she decided to ignore his brusqueness. It would probably pass off.
July was a full month. Her assistant had only been with her for six months, and while he was fully capable, she seemed to have an almost endless list of instructions for him. People from out of town always descended on New York during the summer, and she both entertained and went out a lot. She blew herself to some good looking airplane luggage, a new evening dress. Het dined with her the night before she left for the coast.

"How's your blood pressure," she asked, "high?"
"No, I'm not really very excited," Kay said.
"Don't tell me you're getting blasé."
"Nothing like that," Kay laughed. "I'm looking forward to the trip, but I wish I were going alone."
"David still aloof?"
"Yes. He's been civil and that's about all."
He doesn't seem like the kind of person who'd hold a grudge," Het said. "He took me home the night of Tony's party and we sat around talking for hours. I thought he was grand."
Kay remembered all the infinitely kind things he had done for her. Her first Christmas in New York. She'd come back from church blue as a pair of Dutchman's breeches and found David there, his arms full of presents, waiting to whisk her off to his sister's in Greenwich for a family dinner. The time he had given her a season ticket to the Philharmonic for her birthday, that was her first year at the store and she hadn't had a nickel to waste. The standing order at the florist that kept her apartment gay with flowers. No wonder Het thought he was grand. He was both brilliant and substantial.
Het left early with a promise to be at the airport, Kay had to begin her packing.
"I'm going to drain my thoughts of someone far less substantial than David," Kay thought, passing through the living room. "If Jake cared anything at all for me, surely I would have heard something from him since that night at Tony's."
She paused long enough to admire the cool look of the room. The walls were white and in the summer green and white chintz covered the furniture. The lamps, cigarette boxes, ash trays were white. The only notes of bright color were a painting over the mantelpiece and the flowers.
Her bedroom was in a disarray that she knew probably had near Anna frantic. There was a pile of underwear on the bed, unpacked dresses across chairs, cosmetics jumbled on the dressing table, tissue paper everywhere. She felt sleepy and decided to finish packing in the morning. She brushed her hair and teeth, cold creamed her face, got into bed and turned the light out.
But sleep didn't come as easily as she expected. It hadn't for weeks now. She'd always had short patience with her friends who found endless interest in their insomnia. She still thought it was a boring subject and an infernal nuisance. But she still didn't think it was easy to control. She didn't know which was worse, lying awake, tormented by thoughts of Jake, or sleeping fitfully, disturbed by jumbled dreams. Unrequited love was a new and completely upsetting experience to her. And she couldn't help herself any longer about its being unrequited.

Hints on Etiquette
If a young woman goes to a strange city or town to live and either parent has an old friend in the same place, it is customary for the parent to write to the friend and mention the fact that the daughter is now situated in the same town and ask the friend to call upon the girl. This is the correct procedure, even if the friend is a man and a bachelor.

UNDER THE spur of initiative, well-directed energy of a practical and constructive sort, and insight, important interests should receive much impetus on this day. But principle and prudence, rather than expediency or irregularity of motive and methods, should be adhered to if proper ends are to be attained.
If it is Your Birthday
Those whose birthday it is may enjoy an exceptionally enterprising and productive year, if they will be careful to adhere to strict rules and regulations of business procedure and not be tempted by ways of expedience. With sound purpose and diligence, important enterprises may be carried to success. Social, sentimental, and all round gratifications and pleasures may be able to participate in reaction to progress and initiative.
A child born on this day should have much enterprise, cleverness and executive ability, eager to reach important place in business and socially. It may invite self-undoing by irregular, tricky or questionable methods.

BERGEN AND MCCARTHY

Charlie McCarthy has promised to give his audience the real low-down on political developments in war-time Washington during the broadcast of Sunday, January 31, at 8 p. m. over NBC.

The carrot-topped youngster and his parsimonious mentor, Edgar Bergen, will be in Washington to take part in President Roosevelt's birthday ball January 30, and their portion of the show will be cut in from the nation's capital. They will be guests of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, along with other personalities of the entertainment world who have been invited to attend the ball, at a birthday luncheon in the White House. Following the broadcast of the show on Sunday night, Bergen and McCarthy will board a plane for the return trip to Hollywood.

C. E. Metzger, his son Turney and family are moving to Columbus during the first part of February. The Metzgers have resided on Bullin road up near the Franklin county line for twenty-two years.

The elder Mr. Metzger's grandsons, Richard and Turney, have been students at the local school, Turney having quit school last year as a sophomore and is now in the navy and Richard who is a sophomore at present. A daughter, Myrtle, graduated from Ashville high school, class of 1932.

Neil Joe Murphy, a student at Indianola Junior high school in Columbus, is visiting at his home in Ashville part of this week as all city pupils have a vacation between the close and beginning of the semesters.

Ashville School News

The Red and Black jinx has been broken and the Broncos of Ashville high have defeated the county seat boys after a lapse of several years and somewhat avenges for that humiliating setback last year handed the locals on the C. A. C. floor. If you have forgotten about that score we'll not print it here and just say, in passing, that it wasn't so awfully close. Well, neither was Tuesday night's score so awfully close—it was 47 for us and 33 for them—a matter of 14 points difference, all of which you read in the Herald of Another crack at Walnut and Hamilton township is in the offing. You will recall defeats at the hands of these teams just when the season was getting a start and by the way the boys feel about it, and the coach too, these defeats must be avenged by clear-cut wins. Walnut barely edged AHS, 21 to 20 and later forfeited the game to us on account of an ineligible player, but this is all to be straightened out (we hope) come February 2.

How to Help Protect Eyes and Get More from Your Lighting!

SET A GOOD EXAMPLE FOR THE CHILDREN! Our eyes get worse as we get older... not better. Whether you're reading a bedtime story or a report from the office, make sure your lamp has the right size bulb. You can't go to work tomorrow fresh for any important job... unless you protect your eyes tonight!

KEEP BULBS AND SHADES CLEAN! Scientists say you can get from 25 to 30% more light from a reading lamp just by keeping shades, bulbs and reflectors free from dust! Wipe bulbs with a damp cloth. If shades are dark inside, clean them or replace with white-lined shades that reflect light instead of absorbing it.

A Scarlet Wool Jerkin

The black beret worn with this ensemble is of soft felt.

BRIGHT as a tropical bird, the scarlet wool top for this black crepe, softly tailored frock is an eye-catcher in winter fashions. Wear it beneath your cloth or fur topcoat, and be pretty instead of average-drab when dressed for a casual afternoon.

The epaulette effect, so becoming to the feminine figure as emphasized shoulders appear to minimize waistlines, is made of thick worsted fringe in the same cheery red.

BERGEN AND MCCARTHY
Charlie McCarthy has promised to give his audience the real low-down on political developments in war-time Washington during the broadcast of Sunday, January 31, at 8 p. m. over NBC.

The carrot-topped youngster and his parsimonious mentor, Edgar Bergen, will be in Washington to take part in President Roosevelt's birthday ball January 30, and their portion of the show will be cut in from the nation's capital. They will be guests of the President and Mrs. Roosevelt, along with other personalities of the entertainment world who have been invited to attend the ball, at a birthday luncheon in the White House. Following the broadcast of the show on Sunday night, Bergen and McCarthy will board a plane for the return trip to Hollywood.

TUCKER, JESSEL BACK
Sophie Tucker and George Jessel go back to the real heyday of vaudeville. They played on many a bill together but, as the years went by, they took divergent paths and seldom saw each other. However, they're due to work together again soon, as part of the star-studded "Stage Door Canteen" broadcast over CBS Thursday at 9:30 p. m.

72, MARRIES 23-YEAR-OLD GIRL

NEW LYRICS WRITTEN

Lieutenant Clarence Oakes has written special lyrics to the melody of "The Beer Barrel Polka," and they will be featured on the "Comedy Caravan" Friday, January 29, at 10 p. m. over CBS in an ensemble offering now titled: "Here Comes the Navy." On the same program, which features Zero Mostel, Lew "Monkeyshines" Lehr and Herb Shriner, Georgia Gibbs will sing a special arrangement of the Cole Porter hit, "You'd Be So Nice to Come Home To," and Lanny Ross will sing the Number One song, "Moonlight Becomes You."

ASHVILLE

C. E. Metzger, his son Turney and family are moving to Columbus during the first part of February. The Metzgers have resided on Bulin road up near the Franklin county line for twenty-two years.

The elder Mr. Metzger's grandsons, Richard and Turney, have been students at the local school, Turney having quit school last year as a sophomore and is now in the navy and Richard who is a sophomore at present. A daughter, Myrtle, graduated from Ashville high school, class of 1932.

Neil Joe Murphy, a student at Indiana Junior high school in Columbus, is visiting at his home in Ashville part of this week as all city pupils have a vacation between the close and beginning of the semesters.

Ashville School News

The Red and Black jinx has been broken and the Broncos of Ashville high have defeated the county seat boys after a lapse of several years and somewhat avenges for that humiliating setback last year handed the locals on the C. A. C. floor. If you have forgotten about that score we'll print it here and just say, in passing, that it wasn't so awfully close. Well, neither was Tuesday night's score so awfully close—it was 47 for us and 33 for them—a matter of 14 points difference, all of which you read in the Herald of the 27th, but which we just wished to emphasize in this column for those who don't read the box scores of the games.

Another crack at Walnut and Hamilton township is in the offing. You will recall defeats at the hands of these teams just when the season was getting a start and by the way the boys feel about it, and the coach too, these defeats must be avenged by clear-cut wins. Walnut barely edged AHS, 21 to 20 and later forfeited the game to us on account of an ineligible player, but this is all to be straightened out (we hope) come February 2.

About this return match with Hamilton no one can be so certain regarding the outcome, because the Hamiltonians have height, speed and deception and, although their scores indicate several defeats in the Franklin county games, they still possess a lot of possible strength and the outcome perhaps depends on how

County Ration Board Gets Point System Instructions

DATE FOR START OF PROGRAM NOT YET DETERMINED

Copies Of War Book No. 2 Received And Stored At Headquarters

SCHOOLS TO HAVE ROLE

Every Family Will Feel Effect Of Sharing, Says Inwood Smith

Pickaway county War Price and Rationing Board received its first instructions Thursday from state OPA officials concerning its role in the new point system rationing program to be put into effect soon following distribution of War Ration book No. 2.

Instructions covering the board's preliminary work were received from Inwood Smith, state OPA executive, who, declaring that the date for start of the system has not yet been determined, told the board that it must be preparing for its part in the important task.

Part of the shipment of War Ration book No. 2 has been received by the local office and stored away, while Smith said the remainder of the books will be mailed out soon. The board has placed the books under lock and key since it is charged with their protection.

Book Distribution

Book No. 2 will be distributed in a week or 10-day period, the shorter space of time to be used if the registration can be completed in that time. During the registration period all goods covered by the ration books will be "frozen". Following registration there will be an interval of one week during which no books will be issued. This will give rationing offices a chance to get "their houses in order".

After that week books may be issued to persons who have not yet received them.

The registration will be conducted through Ohio's schools, where an excellent job was completed in sugar book registration. "Schools did a splendid job in that first registration," Smith writes, and he goes on to say: "The second registration should bring an even more efficient job."

"Every family will be affected by the new rationing program," the state OPA man wrote.

A meeting was suggested of school officials and rationing board executives to work out definite arrangements for the registration. Since teachers and some volunteers will have the job of registering the public for Book No. 2, Kenneth Ray, state director of education, has suggested to educators throughout the state that the work be done each afternoon for a week, school being dismissed for the sign-up. Using this method means that teachers will not be forced to conduct their classes throughout the day, then remain up half the night to help in the registration.

That more information will be sent to the rationing board offices was indicated when Smith's letter said a field man from the OPA would come here to conduct a meeting during which questions concerning the rationing sign-up would be answered.

Training courses will be conducted also for rationing board members and clerical personnel, school administrators, retail and wholesale merchants.

Books For All

Every eligible man, woman and child will receive Book No. 2. It has colored stamps in it, blue stamps to be used for any kind of canned or bottled fruit and vegetables, canned or bottled juices and soups, frozen fruits and vegetables and dried fruits. Red stamps will be used later for meat.

The stamps in this book are point stamps, the number on each showing how many points that stamp is worth. Letters on the stamps show the consumer when to use the stamps. The year will be divided into rationing periods.

Goods that is scarce will have a higher point value than goods that is plentiful, thus more stamps will be used for scarcer foodstuffs.

Rationers indicate that the point system will be put into effect late in February or early in March, the latter time being favored by most.

SISTER OF SLAIN MAN HEART ATTACK VICTIM

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon in Canal Winchester for Mrs. Nellie Barnhart, 55, wife of Vernon Barnhart, and sister of Guy B. Fowler of Columbus, whose body was found stuffed in a cedar chest January 17. Police are still hunting Fowler's wife, the former Nannie Bates of Circleville for the murder.

Mrs. Barnhart died Tuesday evening after a heart attack.

Survivors in addition to her husband include two sons, one daughter, three brothers and one sister.

ner at the Swiss Legation, where Wallace's sister is the wife of Swiss Minister Bruggmann.

When Mrs. Wallace entered the door, guests were taken aback at her appearance. She looked almost as is she were going marketing. She wore thick walking shoes; also a hat, and ladies don't wear hats when they go out to official dinners in Washington. She also wore a heavy overcoat.

But Mrs. Wallace stepped into the dressing room and came out a moment later a radiant cinderella. She had taken off her hat and arranged her hair. She had changed her brogues for evening slippers, which she had brought under her arm. She had arranged her long evening gown, which had been up with a string under her coat so it would not drag on the streets.

It was a complete and quick transformation. Then after the dinner, Mrs. Wallace put on her old shoes, hat and slipped away just as quietly as cinderella.

HUSH! HUSH! MR. NICHOLS!

Only rarely in recent history has the entire House of Representatives staged a secret closed-door session. So when one was held last week to hear the report of Representative Jack Nichols' special committee on air safety, Capitol Hill buzzed with rumors that big things were afoot.

Actually, however, the genial Mr. Nichols was merely setting the stage to ask the House to establish a new Committee on Civil Aeronautics—with himself as chairman, of course. The super confidential setting in which he submitted his report was calculated to impress his colleagues with his investigation of airplane accidents.

Actually Jack has been doing a good job, but his "secret" report was chiefly a long-winded recital of civilian air crashes, all reported in the newspapers.

Most important item was a recommendation that the Air Safety Bureau of the Civil Aeronautics Board be made independent again, as prior to the President's reorganization order of June 30, 1940, which created the CAB.

Nichols also rapped the Army for failing to crack down on reckless pilots at air training fields. He said his committee has received many complaints from private airlines about "circuit flying" by rookie Army airmen, which, the airlines contend, has become a serious hazard to safe flying by civilian transport planes.

In California, Nichols revealed, one brash young student pilot looped the loop around a transport plane loaded with passengers.

MOVING FARM WORKERS
The Farm Security Administration has worked out a plan for moving agricultural workers which may solve a lot of problems.

FSA estimates that, despite dire shortage of farm labor, there are as many as half a million men who can't get full employment on the land—because they are in the wrong areas. The problem is to move them to areas where farmers are looking for help.

This problem is aggravated by restrictions on use of gasoline and tires. However, FSA bit into the problem by moving 300 men from the Kentucky hills to the dairying section of Ohio, where they have been placed in jobs. Another group of 191 has been moved and put into training, "so they'll know the hind end of a cow from the fore end."

And from the cutover timber areas of Northern Wisconsin, men are being moved to the dairying sections in the southern part of the state.

These are the first experimental steps in a program which, by the first of March, will be moving 500 men a week. Thus far, FSA is using emergency funds from the President. They hope to get more funds from congress for a permanent program. If it succeeds, it may solve the permanent peacetime problem of the dust bowl.

OPA announced Thursday that beginning about April 1 all edible meats will be rationed.

Under "voluntary rationing" which has been in effect for several months consumers have not been asked to limit use of kidney, heart, liver, sweetbreads, tripe, brains and sweetbread. OPA's statement Thursday disclosed that these, too, will be put under the rationing system.

Meat will be rationed under the point system with the buyer giving up coupons from his War Ration book No. 2.

Point values of the various kinds of meat have not yet been worked out.

HOW to help your Milkman give you better Wartime Service

A Bottle Of Milk Is A Bottle Of Health

READING this will help you — and your milkman, too. You may be one of the many American housewives who do not realize all the difficult wartime problems their milkman has to face. And you may have overlooked some of the simple ways you can help him give you the best service possible under trying wartime conditions. Here are just a few of your milkman's headaches:

He is required to reduce his daily mileage by 25%—more if possible. He must conserve his truck, tires and gasoline—so he no longer can maintain a 7-days-a-week delivery schedule.

He is forbidden to "call back" for collections — and he may not make special deliveries — no matter how much he might like to answer your call for an emergency bottle of milk or cream.

His route has been increased because many of his fellow workers have left to join the armed forces. New men are hard to get — and take time to train. Often he may be late because of the extra ground he has to cover.

His dairy cannot get new equipment—and it's hard to get worn or broken equipment repaired. With increasing demands for milk, with less people and less equipment to handle and bottle it, more delays result. And his troubles are still mounting.

There's a shortage of cans the farmer needs to send milk to the dairy . . . shortage of man power to milk the herds . . . extra demands for milk and dairy products for the armed forces . . .

In spite of these problems, your milkman is doing his level best to serve you well — and we know you'll be glad to help him in every way you can.

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN HELP

Please save and return all milk bottles. Be sure you return them to your milkman, or to the store where you got them.

Please order extra milk or dairy products a day ahead of the time when you plan to use them. This saves much time and assures delivery.

Please buy milk at a nearby store when you run short. Your dairyman hates to say "NO" but he can't make special deliveries.

Naturally, by doing these things to help your milkman, you help insure better wartime service for yourself, too. Your milkman will appreciate your friendly cooperation — the kind of cooperation we need to stay on the road to Victory. Thanks.

The O. P. A. demands that a charge be made on all bottles distributed.

HOW to help your Milkman give you better Wartime Service

A Bottle Of Milk Is A Bottle Of Health

READING this will help you — and your milkman, too. You may be one of the many American housewives who do not realize all the difficult wartime problems their milkman has to face. And you may have overlooked some of the simple ways you can help him give you the best service possible under trying wartime conditions. Here are just a few of your milkman's headaches:

He is required to reduce his daily mileage by 25%—more if possible. He must conserve his truck, tires and gasoline—so he no longer can maintain a 7-days-a-week delivery schedule.

He is forbidden to "call back" for collections — and he may not make special deliveries — no matter how much he might like to answer your call for an emergency bottle of milk or cream.

His route has been increased because many of his fellow workers have left to join the armed forces. New men are hard to get — and take time to train. Often he may be late because of the extra ground he has to cover.

His dairy cannot get new equipment—and it's hard to get worn or broken equipment repaired. With increasing demands for milk, with less people and less equipment to handle and bottle it, more delays result. And his troubles are still mounting.

The O. P. A. demands that a charge be made on all bottles distributed.

There's a shortage of cans the farmer needs to send milk to the dairy . . . shortage of man power to milk the herds . . . extra demands for milk and dairy products for the armed forces . . .

In spite of these problems, your milkman is doing his level best to serve you well — and we know you'll be glad to help him in every way you can.

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN HELP

Please save and return all milk bottles. Be sure you return them to your milkman, or to the store where you got them.

Please order extra milk or dairy products a day ahead of the time when you plan to use them. This saves much time and assures delivery.

Please buy milk at a nearby store when you run short. Your dairyman hates to say "NO" but he can't make special deliveries.

Naturally, by doing these things to help your milkman, you help insure better wartime service for yourself, too. Your milkman will appreciate your friendly cooperation — the kind of cooperation we need to stay on the road to Victory. Thanks.
